

Multimillionaire's Wife, Who, Like Her Famous Sister-in-Law, Mrs. Howard Gould, Declares She Is Under Constant Surveillance of Men Who Spy Upon Her for Some Mysterious Foe.

In Exclusive Interview with an American Reporter Wife of Millionaire Tells of Fears.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(By wire.)—A department of the pre-incident shadowing of men whom she declares are paid spies was upon her, Mrs. Frank J. Gould has hired detectives to guard her from some mysterious foe whose motives and cause she emphatically says she cannot understand. Mrs. Gould, 47, is in Greenwich City, Ct., last night told a representative of the AMERICAN that she had spent a thousand dollars for such service and that she was taken without the knowledge of Mr. Gould.

"Nobody tells me and am being followed by detectives," she declared. "All my friends warn me, and my servants repeatedly inform me that strange men would come in the day or night and might come running to tell me I was being paid for my services."

Not only did Mrs. Gould spend money to have herself guarded against her watchers but she also paid for a friend of the family, who was also being annoyed in the

"So Mysterious," She Says.

"It is all so baffling, so mysterious," she asserted, "for I cannot imagine what reason any one would have for watching me in this persistent manner. No matter where I go there is certain to be some dark shadow lurking about, so my friends tell me. They insist I have been spying on them this close espionage for at least two months."

Mrs. Gould had been out for a drive and a swim and declared she did not feel very well.

Admitting that her friends sometimes thought her husband rather inclined to jealousy occasionally, Mrs. Gould nevertheless maintained that there was no secret.

ous trouble whatever between herself and Mr. Gould.

Friendly With Husband.

"We had a misunderstanding two months ago," she confessed, "and I took it to others, perhaps, as if we were not as friendly as formerly. But this is not so. True, Mr. Gould is in New York most of the time, but I am in constant communication with him, and he comes to see me whenever he has an opportunity. There is no misunderstanding, we are on good terms, and intend to sail for Europe together a week or two. We were to have sailed last week, but he had to go to New York, and I dislike to take a slow voyage, and on rather wait until we can obtain passage on another vessel. Mr. Gould thinks it best to wait for the Deutschland about a week."

Mrs. Gould looked dainty and attractive in a dainty Summer gown of white, and

FRENCH PRESIDENT'S WOULD-BE ASSASSIN IS BELIEVED TO BE INSANE.

PARIS, July 15.—Wholesale arrests of militant leaders are being made today as a result of yesterday's attempt by Leon Maitte on President Poincaré's life.

Authorities intend to confirm the authorities' original surmise that the man is mentally unbalanced and that he is a member of the "League for the Assassination of the President."

The attempt has caused great alarm, however, and anti-militarist activities are being kept under close surveillance in order to prevent any further such attempts as to imply hot-headed militants.

Photographs of Maitte and his associates were widely distributed by the police. A cordon of reserve had to be called to save him from lynching.

A score of hands seized the man with the pistol at the same time and every eye was turned on the President's carriage, the motor of which was stopped.

Then a smile began to flicker on M. Poincaré's face. He turned to the man who was tapping the driver on the shoulder on the shoulder and said:

"It was as if the President had stopped only to look at me. He was not alarmed."

He then turned to the characteristc to the palace from Longchamps, where he had reviewed a parade of the Paris garrison in honor of the national fête.

Maille was waiting at the corner of the Rue Le Goussier, and when the carriage ap-Authorities Declare Phipps Jealous of Dead Man's Attention to Pyne Woman and Will Offer Evidence to Prove Tragedy at Worcester the Result of Feud.

WORCESTER, July 15.—That Frank W. Phipps was jealous of Charles L. Burnap because of attentions that the young man paid to Mrs. Josephine L. Pyne will be one of the points brought out in the prosecution of Phipps, charged with the murder of Burnap, it was stated to-day in police circles.

This alleged feeling between the two men, it is said, was embittered by a dispute at the Edgemere House on the fatal Monday evening over some money. This quarrel, it is said, between Phipps and Burnap, occurred when Phipps and his party, including Mrs. Pyne, drove to the Edgemere and bought some liquor.

It was later that night that Burnap and his friend, George Whiteney, went to the Lily Pond House.
Various versions as to what occurred there have been given.

Talks Through Shutters.
Through the shutters of a blind Mrs. Pyne talked with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. She joked and chatted and then, suddenly, she changed her attitude. Her silliness had disappeared and she seemed to feel happy at being able to talk to someone like the policeman. Seeing the reporter was a man looking for the blind which the State police have not yet found, Mrs. Pyne, after a moment's solid silence, said: "Are you looking for out there in the grass?"

MARY BRENNAN FREED.
 Mary Brennan was the first person arrested in connection with the crime. She was charged with manslaughter. Because she declared she heard a pistol between the two men, she was charged with the crime on Kelly, who had been kind to her, and confessed herself to have done the shooting.

Then Kelly made the second sacrifice in the name of love.

"Well, if I suppose you think you can find the real man, I will let you go," he said.

"I'm all right," she added meekly.

"My Palups is all right; he will be better. You have been a proven innocent then. How do I know? Well, I know you are all right; I will tell my story."

"No, there is nothing anyone can do for me. I am going down to the gallows on Monday and will bring him six other suits to wear in the court."

"I Will Free Rhinos."

"But you just leave it to me, I will straighten out the case when I go into court Tuesday. I will free Mr. Phipps."

During the search of the reporters for bullets, William Guffey, a 16-year-old West Chester boy, was found with a bullet wound where Guffey's body was found. It was a long-handled jack knife with a 12-inch blade that was used to stab the State police were notified, and Detective Murray expressed surprise, but asked the boy to come to the station to see if he could be of any help. The knife was not to be done. A blade of the knife was open

FATAL REVOLVER FOUND.

It is believed that the police have found the revolver with which Burnap was killed. The police have been unable to locate the revolver, but the police have given strong hints that the woman will be presented in court tomorrow.

Mrs. Brennan declared that Mrs. Fyne had told her that the revolver was in the State will allege, it is understood, that the woman had been told by the special officer, went to him and said: "I have a revolver, I want you to get it for me." The police then, according to the police, searched the woman's house and found the revolver. The police then shot her. This was the fatal one.

BIGGEST CROWD IN NANTASKET HISTORY HUNT FOR $200 GOLD TREASURE.

This is a crowd in Paragon Park yesterday. It is not a posed picture, as it plainly shows. It is but one of a thousand snapshots that might have been taken of the throngs that crowded that resort looking for the Red Dollar ($50) Sign Girl and for $5 and $10 gold pieces secreted in the park.

'Red Dollar' Girl Found by Lynn Man, Who Won $50.

The search for the $200 in gold buried at Nantasket Beach yesterday drew the largest crowd to that resort in its history, as far as those connected with the enterprise there can remember. It is estimated that more than 100,000 people were on the beach and in Paragon Park.

More than thousands people today, who found bright shining gold pieces hidden by the BOSTON RUSSELL AMERICAN, are being congratulated by their friends on their good luck.

People reached Nantasket Beach yesterday by every known route. They not only took the trolleys, omnibuses and boats, but hundreds of people drove there. Some of the remarkable scenes on the beach, early in the day, were people driving about in smart cars near the water's edge, others riding on horseback and a small part of the visitors on bicycles and motor cycles.

M'GRAW FACES JURY RESULT OF WOMAN'S FIGHT

Watchman Accused of Killing Boy Put on Trial After Mother's Plea.

TRIAL MOVES QUICKLY

McGraw is completing the case for the prosecution. McGraw pleads not guilty to the charge of murder, although admitting the killing. He claims that Edward attacked him and that he was shot at before he was shot in self-defense.

Asks List of Witnesses.

Clerk Manning read the indictment to McGraw, who stood during the time, sitting from one foot to another. After the clerk had read the names of the witnesses, Attorney E. P. Benjamin for the defense asked the Court that the defense be furnished with a list of the witnesses for the prosecution who had testified before the Grand Jury and who were to be called during the trial. This Judge White on duty refused to do so.

Mrs. Isabel F. Farwell, mother of the man who was killed, and who was with him at the time of the shooting, and who was along with him at the time of the shooting, was not in the courtroom when the case was called.

Shot by Night Watchman.

Benjamin F. Farwell was at the time of his death a brewer in the employ of the American Breweries and Valet Company, Boston, who is accused of his murder, was a night watchman in the same establishment.

On the night of April 25, 1906, McGraw called up the police and told them that he had shot and killed a drunken man in self-defense. The case was referred to the Grand Jury on May 10, and "no bill" was returned.

On the night of the murder, the mother of the man who was killed, and who was with him at the time of the shooting, and who was along with him at the time of the shooting, was not in the courtroom when the case was called.

Mother's Fight Succeeds.

The case was resumed, with the result that on February 8 of this year another grand jury indicted McGraw on a charge of murder in the first degree, and he was arrested and held without bail for trial.

It was further stated that the mother of the man who was killed, and who was with him at the time of the shooting, and who was along with him at the time of the shooting, was not in the courtroom when the case was called.

Refused to Talk.

There still refused to say any reason for his act, however. The prosecution has as yet no grave and serious that I will make these things public, and I will transmit to the chief of state. It is a matter between the government and me.

ENGLAND PROPOSE DISARMMENT

Expect British Delegates to Do
So at Next Saturday's Meeting.

CURIOSITY REIGNSSUPREME

By Hayne Davis.

Special Correspondent of the Hearst News Service at The Hague.

THE HAGUE, July 15.—Knew interest and speculative curiosity pervade today over the fact that a plenary meeting of the disarmament conference will be held next Saturday. At this meeting, it is understood, the British delegation will present a proposition regarding disarmament, great surprise was evidenced by all the delegates.

There is also great surprise at the limited power held by the delegates from Latin America, a fact that they made known in discussing the American proposition relative to the submission of a preliminary draft.

The Latin American delegates oppose the proposition, but they have received orders from their governments to attend the conference.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP UPHELD BY EXPERTS

MEMBERS OF CIVIC FEDERATION COMMISSION DECLARE FOR CONTROL BY CITIES.

The Boston American Learned Writers of the National Civic Federation have declared in favor of public ownership of public utilities and better control of the distribution of the distinguished members of the committee of four appointed by the National Civic Federation's municipal ownership commission to review the reports of the experts who investigated the subject of public ownership of public utilities.

The committee consists of Walter Crockett, president of the United States Civic Federation, and the other three members of the committee are Dr. John D. Rockefeller, president of the National Civic Federation, and Dr. John D. Rockefeller, president of the National Civic Federation, and Dr. John D. Rockefeller, president of the National Civic Federation.

The reports of the experts from whom the committee took its information are the basis of the National Civic Federation's municipal ownership commission to review the reports of the experts who investigated the subject of public ownership of public utilities.

Expect more haywood arrests for perjury state and defence in novel battle to smash conflicting evidence.

BOSTON, July 10.—More arrests are expected today of witnesses accused of perjury in testimony for both the prosecution and the defense in the Haywood case. The prosecution expects the completion of its case today with the testimony of the witness who testified that he saw Haywood shoot the victim.
